FINETUNES AND QTRAX SIGN DIGITAL LICENSING AGREEMENT

March 11, 2008- New York- Digital distribution industry leader finetunes and Qtrax, the world's first free and legal peer-to-peer (P2P) music service, today announce that they have signed a digital licensing agreement.

For more than four years, finetunes has been a pioneer in creating opportunities for independent labels in the digital music markets. Initially focused on providing digital solutions for the German independent labels, the Hamburg-based company now represents more than 1,000 record labels from around the world.

A leading distributor in the field of electronic music, finetunes also represents labels from across the musical spectrum, from jazz to reggae, pop to world music. finetunes stands out from other digital distributors in that it handles all its technical development and operations in-house, giving the company the ability to react fast and innovate – providing labels with solutions such as its recently-launched sales tracking software, enabling its partners to gain a detailed overview of their position in the digital market

Also at the heart of finetunes operation is its global network of satellite offices, which work together with finetunes HQ to secure strategic, focused and truly coordinated international retail marketing for new releases. Furthermore, finetunes is developing new and innovative solutions for catalogue marketing, and also focusing on providing digital marketing opportunities for labels outside of the core market of digital music stores.

“finetunes has been at the forefront of the evolving music market online,” said Founder and Chairman of Qtrax Allan Klepfisz. “They truly pioneered digital distribution and have shown great vision. We are delighted to be able to offer Finetunes catalogue of top artists and songwriters,” continued Klepfisz.
